

Webinar launch of new forensic resource for health and care workers that support autistic people and people with a learning disability.

Health Education England is hosting a share and learn webinar launch its new resource for health and social care workers that support autistic people and people with learning disabilities who have forensic needs.

This short, informative webinar will give an overview of the new forensic resource which has been commissioned by Midlands and East of England. It will also showcase some of the ongoing work in West Midlands to develop the Reach Out forensic provider collaborative.

Speakers and topics for the webinar will include: -

- Professor Ashok Roy, Clinical Lead for Learning Disabilities and Autism, Health Education England
- Dr Roger Banks, National Clinical Director
- Dr Daniel Dalton, National Specialty Advisor (Specialised Commissioning) Mental Health
- Professor Glynis Murphy, Professor John Rose, Professor John Taylor, Professor Peter Langdon, Dr Harm Boer, Dr Farooq Ahmad, Rachael Mackinlay, and Fiona Ritchie

There will also be a questions and answer session with an expert panel.

Registration is free of charge and will be held on Microsoft Teams. For further information about the webinar contact WTHubMidlands@hee.nhs.uk or register using the link below.

Webinar details	Registration details	Date and Time of Event
Share and learn forensic resource for health and care workers	Get in touch with WTHubMidlands@hee.nhs.uk for the invite.	Thursday 5 th August 15.00-17.00